COURSE PREREQUISITES

This course is intended for learners who have successfully completed A2 level English or who demonstrate equivalent proficiency. At the A2 level, students are expected to understand short and simple texts on familiar topics, identify main ideas and details in short passages, and write basic connected sentences and simple paragraphs. They are also able to express personal opinions and describe everyday routines in writing with limited control of grammar and vocabulary. In addition, they should be able to revise short texts for spelling and basic punctuation. Building on these skills, this B1 level course focuses on enabling students to read and analyze longer and more complex texts, and to write well-structured paragraphs and short essays that express clear ideas and opinions.

COURSE GOALS AND CONTENT

The main aim of this course is to strengthen students' reading and writing skills at the B1 level through thematic chapters. The course is designed to improve academic literacy, critical thinking, and written communication. In reading, students will develop the ability to use pre-reading strategies such as predicting and skimming, to identify the topic, main ideas, and supporting details, and to recognize text structures such as cause-effect, pros and cons, and problem-solution. They will also learn to infer the meaning of unfamiliar words from context, to distinguish between facts, opinions, and arguments, and to summarize and interpret key details from various types of texts. In writing, students will practice planning, drafting, and revising short essays and paragraphs. They will write opinion texts, summaries, descriptive and narrative paragraphs. They will also express and support opinions with examples and evidence, paraphrase and summarize information from texts, and edit their own work for coherence, accuracy, and organization. Each of the ten thematic units in the course, which cover topics such as meeting new people, weather, diet, communities, homes, health, media, friendships, and sports, integrates reading and writing skills while also supporting vocabulary development, grammar awareness, and academic skills. By the end of the course, students will be able to move from sentence- and paragraph-level writing to short essays with a clear structure and supporting details.

COURSE OBJECTIVES

Upon the completion of the course, students will be able to:

1. Read and understand short academic and informational texts, identify main ideas, supporting details, and text organization.
2. Apply effective reading strategies such as skimming, scanning, predicting content, and making inferences.
3. Recognize cause-effect relationship in texts and distinguish between facts, opinions, and arguments.
